

Public Private Partnership Public Meeting
August 7, 2012

The FAA conducted a public meeting on August 7 regarding program design and implementation of an equipage incentives program for commercial aircraft and general aviation to equip their aircraft with Next Generation Air Transportation (NextGen) capabilities, pursuant to the FAA's authority in the FAA Modernization and Reform Act of 2012 (sec. 221). The purpose of the meeting was to share the evolution of our thinking based on what the agency heard from stakeholders subsequent to the initial PPP Meeting on May 30 and to communicate the agency's next steps.

The meeting provided an opportunity for the FAA to describe its thoughts on assessing program success, to detail the changes made to the qualified equipage bundles based on stakeholder feedback, to depict a notional example of the mechanics of a loan guarantee program, and to identify acquisition approaches by Other Transaction Authority.

Stakeholders were reminded that the agency is still seeking feedback and is willing to meet with individual stakeholders. Send meeting requests or comments to 9-AWA-APO-NextGenIncentives@faa.gov.

The audience represented a cross-section of interests (airspace users, aviation industry groups, financial entities, and experienced credit program developers/providers). An attendance roster is attached.
