Q. How do I obtain a medical certificate?

A. A medical certificate may be obtained by completing an application and taking a medical examination given by an FAA-designated AME.

Q. How do I obtain the name of an AME who can provide the medical examination?

A. You can locate AMEs in several ways:

A. It is a general physical examination to determine whether you meet medical standards established to ensure that you can safely perform the duties and/or exercise the privileges of a pilot certificate.

Q. If I am denied a medical certificate, what are my appeal rights?

A. If you are denied a medical certificate by an AME, you may, within 30 days after the date of the denial, apply in writing to the FAA's Federal Air Surgeon for reconsideration of that denial. If the FAA upholds the denial, you may apply to the National Transportation Safety Board for appeal.
