DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (If known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

When Governor Printz began the construction of Fort New Gothenburg on Tinicum Island in 1643, the island was separated from the western bank of the Delaware by only a small stream. Today the stream is gone, and the island is part of the mainland. The log fort was built on a high point of the island, closely facing the river. On the shoreward side of the fort was the storehouse, also built of logs, and also fortified. Begun after the fort was the construction of the Printzhof; it was built of hewn logs, probably two stories high, and so arranged that it could be defended in case of attack. It contained ovens, two or more fireplaces with chimneys, made out of imported Swedish brick. The interior was constructed with Swedish lumber, and the windows had glass panes. The construction materials and the furnishings made the Printzhof one of the most elaborate structures in the New World. Clustered around the fort were the simple wooden houses of the settlers, and a log chapel. There were barns and other farming structures as well. Following the 1645 fire and subsequent explosion of the powder magazine, only a single barn remained. In 1646, the fort was rebuilt, as was a new church with a belfry, a free-standing structure alongside the church in the Swedish style. The Printzhof was rebuilt in an enlarged and more elaborate manner, but on the same general plan. Today the stone foundations of the Printzhof, uncovered by archeological excavation in 1937, are the only visible remains of the settlement. The ruins are contained in the seven acre Governor Printz Park.

Aside from the uncovered foundations of the Printzhof, the park contains a statue of Johan Printz, and in the northwest corner, a maintenance shed. Bounded on the west by a hedgerow and fence, on the north and east by Second Street and Taylor Avenue respectively, and on the south by the Delaware River bank, the park, with its various trees and shrubs, is used primarily for recreation purposes. Across Second Street are private homes, and on the east and west are a restaurant and other commercial properties.

BOUNDARIES

Beginning at the SW intersection of Taylor Avenue and Second Street, proceed south along the fence marking the park boundary 913', thence west along the bank of the Delaware approximately 380', thence N along the western fence line 807', thence east at Second Street approximately 303' to the point of origin.

The contained property constitutes the extent of the open and relatively untouched land suitable for the archeological work necessary in developing the site.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

On Tinicum Island, now Essington, Pennsylvania, stood the capital of New Sweden from 1643-54, the first permanent European settlement in what was to become the colony and, later, the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania. The settlement here was due largely to the energies of Governor Johan Printz, who constructed a log fort, "New Gothenburg", and within it his house, the "Printzhof", in addition to a log chapel, a storehouse, and a brewery. The site of the Printzhof is contained today in the seven acre Governor Printz Park. Archeological excavations have uncovered the stone foundations of the Printzhof, which are the only visible remains of the site.

HISTORY

The infant colony of New Sweden on the Christina River at the site of modern Wilmington, Delaware, was virtually ignored by the homeland until the arrival in 1643 of Governor Printz, a large and imposing man who had been instructed to make New Sweden show a profit. He ordered the clearing of more land for agriculture, intensified the cultivation of tobacco, stepped up the beaver trade, and asserted the Swedish claim to a large trading area. Printz expanded the area of settlement by establishing Fort New Gothenburg and the Printzhof on Tinicum Island, further up the Delaware. A great fire swept the settlement in the winter of 1645, and despite the great hardship, Printz set about at once to rebuild the capital. Lumber shipped from Sweden was used in the interior of the reconstructed Printzhof, and two or more fireplaces with chimneys were constructed of brick. In addition, glass windows, drapes, and a library all contributed to make the Printzhof a very luxurious residence. The increased trading by the Swedes soon sparked the Dutch of New Netherland into a hostile rivalry which manifested itself in Peter Stuyvesant's construction of Fort Casimir at what is now New Castle. After having quelled one mutiny, Printz despaired of receiving adequate support and sufficient settlers from home. He gave up his command in October, 1653, and returned to Sweden. His successor, Johan Rising, rashly seized Fort Casimir in the following year. His action was answered by Stuyvesant's capture of the entire Swedish colony a year later. The inhabitants, however, were allowed to continue their accustomed way of life.

DESCRIBE THE PRESENT AND ORIGINAL (if known) PHYSICAL APPEARANCE

The main building faces the river which was lined with a balustrade, two block houses and a wharf. The one block house which still stands, with its window within an inset arch, is the only Federal Style structure on the Lazaretto complex.

The main building is a very handsome mid-Georgian brick structure with slightly projecting central pavilion and flanking wings, very much in the tradition of seventeenth century English and eighteenth century American medical structures. Prototypes for the Lazaretto can be traced back at least as far as Robert Hooke's Bethlehem Hospital, or Bedlam, designed in 1674 and completed two years later. Demolished in 1816, this structure consisted of three pavilions with hipped roofs and cupolas within balustrades, connected by two long pitch roof winds with pedimented centers. Although on a far grander scale than the Lazaretto, the basic elements can be easily compared; the projecting three storey central pavilion with hipped roof, four corner chimneys, cupola and balustrade, the two storey flanking wings with gabled roofs, and the regular fenestration.

Although the ward wings have been made over into apartments, the central pavilion retains its original interior. Very much in the tradition of a grand Georgian home, there is a center hall plan, two rooms deep. The stairway with plain unfluted pilasters to dado height at the first floor landing, is to the left of the hall. The railing, with rampings and easings between the first and second floors, and the thin square balusters with channel mouldings on all four sides are very graceful.

The left front room on the first floor was probably the office and receiving room. The very handsome Welford-type mantel, perhaps by Zane and Chapman, with gouge carving and composite columns, has composition work baskets, flowers, garlands and urns.

The right front room was probably the dining room and opens into the right rear room by means of a folding paneled partition.

Each room on the three floors of the center section has a fireplace except the first floor left rear room. The built-in cupboards and outside door in this room suggest that this was a pantry and preparing room. Several feet from this outside doorway is an old brick structure, now a garage, whose window retains its original wooden shutters. The scar of a brick passageway around the exterior of the "pantry" doorway suggests that at one time this outbuilding was the kitchen, and a 1911 magazine clipping in the Amma Broomall Notebooks at the Delaware County Historical Society show that the end chimney was along the east wall where the garage doors have now been out.

The second and third floor rooms and the first floor right rear room are all similar in plan with a built-in cupboard to either the right or left of the fireplace. Each mantel is simply but well moulded, and the fireplace surrounds are plain except in the second floor right front room and the first floor back right room where the mantel shelves are supported by unfluted pilasters. The latter retains its original iron fireback.

The dados, innerside of the doors, and mantels have been repainted and the original color combinations were blue and yellow, green and beige and pink and yellow. The outside of the doors and some of the mantels were stained to look like either walnut or mahogany.

Despite the fact that the rooms are filled with old airplane parts, they are in good original condition and could easily be restored.

STATEMENT OF SIGNIFICANCE

During the eighteenth and earlier part of the nineteenth centuries, the quarantine of afflicted persons was the only effective means of controlling epidemics. Quarantine stations, or lazarettos, were particularly necessary near seaports, where arriving vessels could bring in smallpox, cholera, yellow fever, and other diseases. The first quarantine station in Pennsylvania was near Fort Mifflin in Philadelphia, but was moved to Essington in 1800 when Philadelphians became alarmed over the proximity of the former. To operate the Lazaretto, the state legislature created a Board of Health with the power to levy taxes, yet controlled by Philadelphia. In 1798 a body called "Mangers of Marine City Hospital" was charged with selecting a site and establishing a quarantine station. The name Lazaretto first appears in the minutes of the Board of Health during the search for a site in early 1799. On May 5, 1799, the board reported having selected land "near the mouth of the Darby Creek on Tinicum," and reported its purchase of ten acres from Thomas Smith on May 21, 1799. The Board of Health started construction of the quarantine buildings immediately and by the close of 1800 had completed the steward's quarters or main building, a physician's residence, quarantine master's house, custom house, wharf, and various small buildings. Over the span of years that the Lazaretto operated there were seven major buildings and many minor ones on the property. Today the main building, one block house, the physician's residence (now headquarters for the Riverside Yacht Club), and two small brick building remain.

It is clear from admonitions of the College of Physicians that the Lazaretto was intended to serve primarily for the quarantine of sick persons arriving on ships from foreign ports as well as American ports when necessary. But it was also to receive patients from Philadelphia.

In 1880 the Federal Government took over quarantine operations and moved them to Marcus Hook. By the turn of the twentieth century the Philadelphia Athletic Club had turned the Lazaretto into a pleasure resort for the wealthy. In 1913 Colonel Robert C. Glendinning and George C. Thomas set up a School of Flying with six planes. The good harbor and docking facilities gave these men an opportunity to pioneer in seaplane flying and they founded the Philadelphia Seaplane Base in 1915.

With the approach of war in 1916 the entire operation was taken over by the Army Signal Corps to train a squadron of flyers. The base was called Chambers Field and the Lazaretto was its main barracks and headquarters.

After World War I the Lazaretto saw a period of decline until Philadelphiad decided to put it up for sale in 1936. Frank Mills purchased the property and, with his brothers, is still operating the seaplane base.

The Lazaretto is of great importance not only for the role it played in the development of public health, but for its architectural beauty which makes it one of the most handsome Mid-Georgian structures in the United States.

Area of Potential Effect (APE): Newark Liberty Int'l Airport
South: Elizabeth, Union Co.
North: Newark, Essex Co.

The NY/NJ/PHL Metropolitan Area Airspace Redesign Alternatives do not result in direct impacts because they do not include any infrastructure construction. Therefore, the proposed APE was developed to include areas potentially subject to indirect impacts from changes in noise exposure. The proposed APE includes all the potentially significantly noise impacted census blocks. A significant noise impact occurs when a particular Airspace Alternative, as compared to the Future No Action Alternative, results in a change in noise of 1.5 DNL or greater and a noise exposure of 65 DNL or greater. The APE was developed by combining all of the significantly impacted census blocks for all of the Airspace Alternatives.

This study of the Area of Potential Effect (APE) for the NY/NJ/PHL Metropolitan Area Airspace Redesign addresses areas near the Newark Liberty Int'l Airport. The APE lies within two separate areas designated South and North. The APE was determined through analysis of areas facing potential noise increase due to the airspace redesign. An investigation of Section 106 resources was required as part of the EIS. The APE is shaded in yellow on the accompanying map. (Figure 1)

The APE South study area is located in the city of Elizabeth, Union County, south of the airport. (Figures 2, 3 & 4) The APE North is located in Newark, Essex County, north of the airport. (Figures 6, 7 & 8) The two APEs are so divergent in geography, history, character, and documentation by past studies that they will be reviewed separately in this report. The larger area, South, will be addressed first. A more detailed description will be addressed in their respective Reports of Findings.

The two APEs were reviewed to determine whether any structures in the areas are either listed on or eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. Archaeological assessment, National Register Criterion D, was not a part of this evaluation of above-ground resources because the only significant impact was determined to be noise. The current FAA project involves no construction; therefore, no infrastructure is involved.

This review of historic buildings was conducted by locating previous studies of the area, as well as individually documented resources. This information is on file at the New Jersey Historic Preservation Office in Trenton. The APE was also visually inspected by a windshield survey, driving all streets in the APE. Photographs of typical streetscapes within the APE are depicted in the accompanying plates.

Historical Context

APE South: Elizabeth, Union Co., NJ

The APE South is located in the City of Elizabeth, Union County, New Jersey. The APE comprises approximately 50 somewhat noncontiguous city blocks in the eastern section of Elizabeth. (Figures 2, 3 & 4)

The Arthur Kill channel forms the southeastern boundary of Elizabeth, separating the city from Staten Island. The Elizabeth River flows southeast into the Arthur Kill (derived from the Dutch 'Achter Kol' or 'behind the bay'). (Figure 5) Native Americans inhabited this region prior to European occupation.

No settlement occurred in this area during the Dutch Colonial occupation, which ended with their defeat by the British in 1664. In December of that year the English Colonel Richard Nicholls, agent for James, Duke of York, purchased a half-million acre tract of central New Jersey from the Native Americans of Staten Island. The following spring the capital city of Elizabethtown (now Elizabeth) was founded 2 miles up the Elizabeth River at its tidal limit. This first permanent English settlement in New Jersey was initially inhabited by Puritans from New England, but in 1682 it was purchased by English and Scottish Quakers.

Elizabethtown was the political and economic center of the colony East Jersey until the capital was moved to Perth Amboy in 1686. Over the next century commercial and industrial growth expanded. The waterfront along the Arthur Kill, the southeastern edge of the APE, later known as Elizabethport, was eventually served by three ferries running to Staten Island and New York City. (Figure 5)

During prehistoric Native American habitation several trails were established through the area, which were later improved as colonial roads, including Elizabeth Avenue, Broad and North Broad Streets, and Morris Avenue. These roads and the ferries were the first of many important transportation systems through Elizabethtown.

Many religious and educational institutions were established throughout Elizabethtown's history to serve the populace. In the early 18th century the Presbyterian church became more dominant than the founding congregationalist Puritan church. Episcopalians also gained in numbers at this time.

Elizabethtown became widely respected as an important educational center with the establishment of private grammar schools and academies. A landmark event was Presbyterian pastor Jonathan Dickinson's founding of the College of New Jersey in 1746. The college later was relocated and became Princeton University.

The greater Elizabethtown area was a strategic location during the Revolutionary War. Nearly fifty wartime incidents took place in the vicinity. The town predominantly sided with the American patriots, led by the Presbyterian Church. The military forces of the Americans and British alternated occupation of Elizabethtown from 1776 to 1781, inflicting great damage upon the town's buildings, particularly the 1780 torching of the courthouse and the Presbyterian Church by loyalists.

After the Revolutionary War Elizabethtown remained one of the two largest cities in New Jersey, along with Newark. During and after the war many national leaders emerged from the area, such as Elias Boudinot, president of the Continental Congress at the end of the war, and U.S. Senator, Governor of New Jersey, and transportation entrepreneur Aaron Ogden. Developments included the building of the Methodist Episcopal Church and the establishment of schools and libraries. The New Jersey Journal newspaper was established in 1785.

Transportation facilities for both overland and marine traffic developed rapidly during this period, notably with the introduction of steamboats and improved roads such as the Morris Turnpike, now Morris Avenue. The first regional railroad, the New Jersey Railroad, opened between Elizabethtown and Newark in 1835. The following year a horse-drawn train commenced service from Elizabethport to Elizabeth. In 1849 the Central Railroad Company of New Jersey (CRRNJ) constructed a more extensive network of railroad lines. Freight and repair yards were built in Elizabeth to serve the railroads.

Local industry expanded greatly with these modes of transporting goods. Numerous small factories and mills had operated throughout the early history of Elizabethtown, manufacturing a vast assortment of products including bricks, leather, lumber, clocks, textiles, carriages, wagons, and boats. But by the opening of the railroads in 1835, the importance of local farm products was superseded by iron and machinery production. The most important freight carried by the new railroads was coal, essential for fueling steam power.

The new town of Elizabeth Port was established in 1835 along the Arthur Kill waterfront in the vicinity of the Central Railroad and the ferry. The town was planned to include both residential and industrial development. Ironworks, machine shops, and a rope, flax, and hemp manufacturer were soon built.

In 1855 city boundaries were drawn, formally establishing the City of Elizabeth. In 1857, the southern part of Essex County was separated and became Union County, with Elizabeth as the county seat. The population of Elizabeth grew from 5,583 in 1850 to 25,000 in 1870. By this era much of the old town was rebuilt with new industrial and commercial enterprises. A total of 25 churches and many new schools were founded.

The two municipalities of Elizabeth and Elizabeth Port expanded toward each other, merging in the late 19th century. The latter town was characterized by workers' housing for the nearby factories. Irish, German, and southern and eastern European immigrants took advantage of this proximity.

The largest factory built in Elizabeth Port was the Singer Manufacturing Co. The original building opened in 1873, employing 2,500 workers. At that time this manufacturer of sewing machines was considered the largest single-product factory in the world. Until the 1930s this remained the largest factory in the region. At the turn of the century Elizabeth was a leader in the state for machinery and iron works.

Shipbuilding was another significant industry on Elizabeth Port's waterfront in this era. Other industries gaining prominence in the early 20th century included oil refining and electronics manufacturing. There was a general decline in the economy during the Depression of the 1930's, with some rebound during and after World War II.

In the second half of the 20th century new highways were built, with trucking bringing a decline of the railroads. New transportation modes such as Interstate 95, as well as the neighboring Newark International Airport, provided opportunities. Overall, industry declined in Elizabeth in the 1950's. The once-dominant Singer Factory closed in 1982.

Elizabeth and Elizabeth Port retained both residential neighborhoods and industrial areas in the late 20th century. The most significant industrial activity at this time was the development of Port Elizabeth along the waterfront, a major container shipping port.

Report of Findings

APE South: Elizabeth, Union Co.

The APE South is located in Elizabeth, Union Co., New Jersey, just south of the Newark Liberty Int'l Airport. (Figures 2, 3 & 4) The general area is bound by the Arthur Kill channel to the southeast, Elizabeth Ave. to the southwest, the airport to the northeast, and Rt. 1/9 to the northwest. Interstate 95, the New Jersey Turnpike, runs northeast-southwest through the area. The topography is fairly level, sloping gently to the waterfront.

The APE is found northwest of I-95, except for two disconnected blocks southeast of the highway. One of these blocks contains the Arthur Kill Waterfront Park, currently under development. (Plate 14.) There are no standing structures on the property. Archaeological Assessment, National Register Criterion D, was not part of this evaluation of above-ground resources.

The city block running between Delaware St. and Zamorski Drive (Plate 10), southeast of I-95, is residential in character, similar to the APE's approximately 32 residential blocks found north of the highway. Two large blocks in the APE, one located on Dowd Ave. and one on Division Street, are completely occupied by modern industrial enterprises. The buildings in these two blocks are less than 50 years old and are not of significance under National Register Criteria A, B, or C. These structures are therefore ineligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places.

Several recent architectural studies and Section 106 reviews which encompass the APE have been conducted (see bibliography). These studies were reviewed, as well as the SHPO website list of National Register-eligible resources, updated Nov. 21, 2005. These sources concurred in finding that two National Register-eligible buildings are located within the APE. The Italianate Rowhouse (Plates 1 & 2), built in 1865 at 169-173 Reid St., is eligible under National Register Criterion C, as "an excellent and unusually intact example of a multi-family dwelling in the Italianate style." (Arch2, June 2000; SHPO Opinion 3/19/1996) The Sacred Heart Church (Plate 3) stands at the southwest corner of Spring and Bond Streets. The church "was built circa 1890 of random brownstone in the Gothic Revival style...Sacred Heart Church is eligible for listing on the National Register under Criterion C as an excellent example of the Gothic Revival style as applied to an ecclesiastical structure." (Arch2, 2000; SHPO Opinion 3/19/1996) The Sacred Heart School (Plate 4), a circa 1900 brick building, is included in this opinion of National Register eligibility. The Central Railroad of New Jersey line through Elizabeth has also been determined Register-eligible (SHPO Opinion 7/19/1991; DOE 11/30/1995) (Plates 5 & 6).

The residential section of the APE was established during the late 19th century as the area between Elizabeth and Elizabeth Port merged. The predominant housing type is the two-story single-family frame dwelling, built on a narrow lot with the gable facing the street. (Plates 9 & 11) Most of these simple homes show no distinctive style, and they have been quite modernized. (Plates 7 & 8) A few brick houses are found in the APE. (Plate 12)

Several commercial buildings are found throughout the neighborhood. Spring Street and the south end of Elizabeth Ave. are mainly commercial. The latter street includes many turn-of-the-19th century buildings that have been quite altered. (Plate 13)

No additional National Register-eligible resources were identified during our windshield survey. A variety of late 19th and early 20th century buildings are found in the APE. None was discovered to be associated with events or persons significant to American history, National Register Criteria A and B. Numerous modern intrusions interrupt the streetscapes, detracting from the setting and feeling of the neighborhood. The integrity of materials and workmanship of most of the buildings has been compromised by the application of modern materials such as aluminum siding and windows. (Plates 7, 8 & 9) Many buildings have lost integrity of design due to incompatible additions. (Plate 10) Therefore no other buildings in the APE meet National Register Criterion C.

Due to these considerations there are no parts of the APE eligible as a National Register Historic District. Representative streetscapes are depicted in the accompanying photographs.

The only potential adverse effect upon the National Register-eligible properties within the APE is a possible increase in noise due to altered air traffic patterns in the NY/NJ/PHL Metropolitan Area. Considering the urban setting of the properties within the APE, and the ambient noise generated by the surrounding industry and highways, it is concluded that these increases would not constitute an adverse effect upon a National Register-eligible property. There are no physical threats to the APE from this project.

Historical Context

APE North: Newark, Essex Co.

The APE North is located in the City of Newark, Essex County, New Jersey. The APE comprises seven city blocks in the southeastern corner of Newark. (Figures 6, 7 & 8)

Prior to European settlement the Hackensack group of the Lenape Native Americans inhabited the Passaic River area near present-day Newark. In 1666 a group of Puritans from Connecticut, led by Captain Robert Treat, arrived here and purchased approximately sixty square miles of land from the Lenapes. The settlement was ruled by the church as a theocracy with some participation by the congregation. Newark was laid out in a grid pattern of broad, tree-lined streets and public commons, similar to New England towns. The town was centered on the south bank of the Passaic River. Small shops and a grist mill formed the first commercial enterprises. By the late 17th century leather goods were produced in Newark.

The community remained relatively isolated until roads and ferries were established in the late 18th century. Then Newark became an important town for the marketing of farm products. (Figure 9)

In the early 19th century the local leather producers expanded into carriage, harness, and saddle making. Other industries followed, such as iron foundries and jewelry and fine tool makers. Also at this time transportation routes were improved with the Passaic and Hackensack River bridges and the 1832 Morris Canal. Coal for manufacturing was more easily shipped in. By 1834 Newark was declared a port of entry, and the New Jersey Railroad was built between Newark and Jersey City. Within two years the Morris & Essex Railroad commenced operations between Newark and Orange. Nearby New York City provided a market for Newark's products.

The City of Newark received its charter in 1836. During the industrial growth of the mid-19th century Irish and German immigrants formed ethnic communities in the city. Italian immigrants arrived at the end of the century.

Newark experienced growth in industry as well as in retail and service operations in the late 19th and early 20th centuries. Chemical and electrical machinery manufacturers were successful. Financial and insurance businesses appeared. Service lines for sewer, water, gas, and electricity were built. By 1910 most of the roads had been paved. Many of the 18th and 19th century structures were replaced with more modern buildings.

Throughout the 20th century ethnic groups such as Hispanics and rural southern blacks moved to Newark to take advantage of manufacturing jobs. Newark faced challenges during the Great Depression of the 1930s, as well as the riots of the 1960s. However, during the mid-20th century transportation improvements such as the Newark International Airport and Interstate Highway 95 have increased access to the city. Despite an economic rebound after World War II, many parts of the city have deteriorated. However, Newark has preserved many historic areas, the city center is vibrant, and there are colorful, bustling ethnic neighborhoods.

APE North: Newark, Essex Co.

The APE North is located in Newark, Essex Co., New Jersey, just north of the Newark Liberty Int'l Airport. (Figures 6 & 7) Newark is generally bound by Newark Bay and I-95 to the east, Newark Int'l Airport, the Port Newark shipping area, and I-78 to the south, the Passaic River to the north, and the Garden State Parkway to the West. The topography is fairly level, sloping gently to the waterfront. (Figure 8) The APE consists of seven blocks in southeast Newark.

Several historic sites surveys have been conducted in Newark in recent years (see bibliography). These studies were reviewed, as well as the SHPO website list of National Register-eligible resources, updated Nov. 21, 2005. These sources concurred in finding that there are no National Register-eligible sites located within the APE. Archaeological Assessment, National Register Criterion D, was not part of this evaluation of above-ground resources.

The main section of the APE comprises a four-block area bound by South, Pulaski, and Chestnut Streets, and Wheeler Point Road. An additional block adjoins the northeast corner of Chestnut Street.

The area from South St. to Delancy St. features predominantly commercial and light industrial uses. (Plates 5, 6, and 16.) The oldest brick buildings appear to date from circa 1900. They have been much-altered with blocked window and door openings, incompatible additions, the removal of original architectural features, and the application of modern materials such as aluminum siding. Many buildings stand in deteriorated or abandoned condition. Numerous modern structures further detract from any remaining historical character of this area.

A residential area overlaps this industrial area along Delancy St. and runs through Chestnut. The western end of Chestnut St. as well as Pulaski St. presents a mix of residential and commercial structures. (Plates 2 and 4.) The short block between Hanover and Denbigh Streets is used as a baseball field.

The last two blocks of the APE extend to the northeast, primarily along Houston, Napoleon, and Ann Streets. (Plates 3 and 7 through 14.) The northeasternmost end of the APE on Wilson Ave. is commercial in character. (Plate 1.) The rest of this section is residential.

The neighborhoods within the APE were established from the late 19th century through the early 20th century. The majority of residences are two-story single-family dwellings of wood frame construction. Some brick buildings (Plates 5 and 6), duplexes or small apartment buildings (Plate 3), and single-story homes are also located here. The house located at 26-30 Houston St. seems to be one of the older and more stylish homes in the APE. It appears to be a single story dwelling to which was appended a Victorian/Italianate entry tower. (Plate 12.)

Most of the commercial and light industrial buildings in the APE are constructed of brick. (Plates 1,2,4, and 16.) Few of the buildings of any type within the APE exhibit formal stylistic characteristics. Bracketed cornices and decorative brickwork are among the rare distinctive elements. (Plates 2,4,5,6, and 12.)

No additional National Register-eligible resources were identified during our windshield survey. A variety of late 19th and early 20th century residential, commercial, and light industrial buildings are found in the APE. None was discovered to be associated with events or persons significant to American history, National Register Criteria A and B. Numerous modern intrusions (Plate 15) interrupt the streetscapes, detracting from the setting and feeling of the neighborhood. The integrity of materials and workmanship of most of the buildings has been compromised by the application of modern materials such as aluminum siding and windows and patterned tiles. (Plates 7, 8, 10, 11, 13, and 14.) Many buildings have lost integrity of design due to incompatible additions. Therefore no buildings in the APE meet National Register Criterion C.

Due to these considerations there are no parts of the APE eligible as a National Register Historic District. Representative streetscapes are depicted in the accompanying photographs.

The only potential adverse effect from the proposed project upon the APE, which contains no National Register-eligible properties, is a possible increase in noise due to altered air traffic patterns from the Newark Liberty Int'l Airport. Considering the urban setting of the properties within the APE, and the ambient noise generated by the surrounding industry and highways, it is concluded that these increases in noise would not constitute an adverse effect upon a National Register-eligible property. There are no physical threats to the APE from this project.

Area of Potential Effect and Historical Context: Tinicum Township, PA

The NY/NJ/PHL Metropolitan Area Airspace Redesign Alternatives do not result in direct impacts because they do not include any infrastructure construction. Therefore, the proposed APE was developed to include areas potentially subject to indirect impacts from changes in noise exposure. The proposed APE includes all the potentially significantly noise impacted census blocks. A significant noise impact occurs when a particular Airspace Alternative, as compared to the Future No Action Alternative, results in a change in noise of 1.5 DNL or greater and a noise exposure of 65 DNL or greater. The APE was developed by combining all of the significantly impacted census blocks for all of the Airspace Alternatives.

This study of the Area of Potential Effect (APE) for the NY/NJ/PHL Metropolitan Area Airspace Redesign addresses areas near the Philadelphia International Airport. The Area of Potential Effect (APE) is found in Tinicum Township, Delaware County, Pennsylvania. This township lies at the southeastern edge of the Philadelphia International Airport (Figures 3 & 4). The Delaware River forms the southwestern township boundary, and Darby Creek forms the northwestern border. Interstate 95 runs northeast-southwest through the upper third of the township. The project APE lies south of I-95. The Bow Creek which once created Tinicum Island was later filled in during the 19th century to leave the former island attached to the mainland.

Tinicum Island was historically occupied by the Lenni-Lenape Indians, later known as the Delawares. The English and Dutch were the first Europeans to explore and settle in the Delaware River Valley in present-day Delaware, Pennsylvania, and New Jersey, from 1609 to 1635.

In 1638 Sweden established the capital of its Delaware River settlement, Fort Christina, now Wilmington, Delaware. Lieutenant Colonel Johan Printz was sent from Sweden in 1643 to build a new seat of government on Tinicum Island, a more strategic location to control the Delaware River. Governor Printz of New Sweden built a fort at New Gothenburg and a governor's mansion, the Printzhof. The new settlements struggled to survive the hardships of the Delaware frontier, and in 1647 the population of both New Gothenburg and Christina totaled only 80. Printz returned to Sweden in 1654. His successor, Governor Rising, surrendered New Sweden to the Dutch the following year.

Ten years later, in 1664, New Amsterdam surrendered to England. Tinicum Island became part of Pennsylvania under William Penn in 1682. Ownership of the island was in dispute amongst various parties throughout the late 17th century.

Tinicum Island, formerly part of Ridley Township, became an independent township in 1780. During the Revolutionary War Tinicum occupied a strategic position for control of the Delaware River.

Tinicum was a fishing, boatbuilding and farming community throughout the 18th and 19th centuries. The establishment of the Lazaretto Hospital, a quarantine station, in 1799 contributed to the local economy. However, the population of 158 in 1790 grew slowly to only 188 a century later. The 1850 census recorded 178 residents, 26 homes and eleven farms.

Transportation to the area was improved by the opening of the Philadelphia, Wilmington, and Baltimore Railroad in 1838, the construction of a drawbridge over Darby Creek in 1840, and the opening of the Tinicum Island Road in 1869 (Figure 1). The first of several trolley lines serving Tinicum was the Prospect Park Street Railway in 1895. These transportation lines facilitated the establishment of yachting, fishing, and hunting clubs during the second half of the 19th century. Tinicum became a popular resort for entertainment and recreation facilities such as Rosedale Park and the amusement area on the Rosengarten Estate.

Housing subdivisions such as Essington, Rosedale, and Corbindale, as delineated on the 1892 map of Tinicum, led to an increase in the area's population, numbering 1,135 in 1910. Further residential and commercial development throughout the 20th century eliminated the remaining farms. The town name of Essington predominated.

Early industries in Tinicum Township included the Lester Piano Company, 1888; The Essington Yacht Yard, 1890; The Harry Rasmussen Boatbuilding Yard, 1900; and the Blatz Boatbuilding Yard, 1909.

Tinicum's industry expanded rapidly during World War I. In 1917 a 900-acre shipyard was built on nearby Hog Island. This provided the impetus for Westinghouse Electric Corporation to construct a large manufacturing facility in Tinicum Township. The company employed 2,950 workers during WWI and 13,000 workers during WWII. The Reading Railroad Company built a locomotive turn-around facility in 1918. In the 1930's Linde Air Products Corp. built a bottled-gas plant.

Aeronautical industries first developed in Tinicum in 1915 when Robert Glendining and George Thomas established the Philadelphia Seaplane Base on the old Lazaretto property. In 1916 the U.S. Army took over the base as a location for flight training for the war effort, renaming the facility Chandler Field. Frank Mills, who became a partner in the base in 1915, operated the base after WWI. The effort was continued by his sons through the late 20th century.

The earliest part of the Philadelphia International Airport was founded in 1925. This airport has had a great influence on the mid-and-late 20th century character of Tinicum Island and Essington.

Today remnants of Tinicum's varied history present an architectural patchwork of residential, commercial, and industrial structures.

Report of Findings: Tinicum Township, PA

The Area of Potential Effect (APE) for the NY/NJ/PHL Metropolitan Area Airspace Redesign lies within Tinicum Township, Pennsylvania. The APE was determined through analysis of areas facing potential noise increase due to the airspace redesign. An investigation of Section 106 resources was required as part of the EIS. The APE is shaded in yellow on the accompanying map. The APE study area comprises portions of an area bounded by I-95 to the north, the Delaware River to the south, Darby Creek to the west, and the Philadelphia International Airport to the east.

A review of historic buildings within the APE was conducted by:

- 1) Review of sites documented by the Pennsylvania Historical and Museum Commission.
- 2) Windshield survey; visual inspection, driving all streets in the APE.
- 3) Documentary research.

Twenty-four sites were surveyed in 1994 during the Tinicum Historic Resources Survey conducted by the Delaware County Planning Dept. Of the sites from this group which fell within the APE, Governor Printz Park (PHMC #000718; 045-TI-002) is listed as a National Historic Landmark. The Lazaretto (PHMC #000715) is listed in the National Register of Historic Places. Corinthian Yacht Club (PHMC #079244; 045-TI-001), along with Springhouse (045-TI-018) which stands on the same property, and Westinghouse Village (045-TI-005) were determined NR eligible. Two surveyed sites, Linde Air Products Corporation (045-TI-009) and Art Moderne House (045-TI-014), which were not considered NR-eligible in 1994, have been re-evaluated for the current 2006 EIS and were found to be NR-eligible. Updated PHMC Historic Resource Survey forms have been written for all four NR-eligible sites. Further research, beyond the scope of the current study, is recommended for these four sites.

The Governor Printz Park (Plates 1 & 2) presents open space along the Delaware River on the site of the 1643 Swedish settlement. A statue of Governor Printz and informative signboards are found in the park. The adjoining Corinthian Yacht Club (Plates 3, 4 & 5) to the west stands as a building with successive uses and additions, from a circa 1800 residence to a mid-19th century inn, to an 1892 yacht club. This property occupies part of the Swedish settlement, and the stone outbuilding may date from that era. The history of the Linde Air Products Corp. (Plate 6) land west of the Yacht Club ranges from the early Native American and Swedish settlement through the 18th and 19th centuries, to the mid-20th century industrial era. These three contiguous properties occupying the site of the Swedish settlement gain significance from standing structures as well as from archaeological potential.

The Lazaretto (Plates 7 & 8) derives significance from its 1799 Georgian brick architecture as well as from its history as an early 20th century seaplane base. The building is slated for restoration with assistance from the State of Pennsylvania. The hospital's physicians' residence is currently occupied by the Riverside Yacht Club.

The Art Moderne House (Plates 9, 10 & 11) was re-evaluated for this study. The modern-style stuccoed building is considered NR-eligible as an unusual example of its type. The 1930's or 1940's building displays an eclectic mix of modern styles, perhaps an interpretation by a amateur builder.

The Westinghouse Village rowhouses (Plates 12, 13 & 14) are located partly within the APE. The multiple-dwelling brick residences, built by Westinghouse Electric Corporation in 1918 for its workers, provided a model for other such company housing. The 172 out of 192 units which have survived are now privately owned. Despite some modernization the neighborhood, which includes several distinctive Dutch Colonial buildings, retains its overall form. Further study is recommended to set specific boundaries for the district, which is beyond the scope of the current project.

These National Register listed or eligible buildings are documented within the individual survey forms, as well as in photographic Plates 1 through 14.

The remaining sites surveyed in 1994 represent the spectrum of residential, commercial, municipal, ecclesiastical, and industrial structures in Tinicum Township. The majority of buildings date from the late 19th through mid-20th centuries. For the most part they are not noteworthy examples of their types, and they have been somewhat altered by the removal of original features and the application of modern materials. None of these structures is eligible for nomination to the National Register.

Streetscapes and building types within the APE were documented during the windshield survey. The variety of buildings is represented in photographic Plates 15 through 30. The earliest housing types include turn of the 19th/20th century single-family homes, built with a gable-front (Plates 21 and 22) or a single roof sloping front to back (Plate 25). Early 20th century duplexes (Plates 16, 23, and 29) are interspersed with later Foursquares (Plate 28) and bungalows (Plates 17 through 20).

Numerous modern intrusions as well as extensive modifications of older buildings have altered the historic character within the APE. No additional NR-eligible resources, either individual buildings or districts, were identified within the APE during this survey. Representative streetscapes are depicted in the accompanying photographs.

No additional National Register-eligible resources were identified during our windshield survey. A variety of late 19th and early 20th century buildings are found in the APE. None was discovered to be associated with events or persons significant to American history, National Register Criteria A and B. Modern intrusions interrupt the streetscapes, detracting from the setting and feeling of the neighborhood. The integrity of materials and workmanship of most of the buildings has been compromised by the application of modern materials such as aluminum siding and windows. Many buildings have lost integrity of design due to incompatible additions. Therefore no buildings in the APE meet National Register Criterion C.

The only potential adverse effect upon the National Register-eligible properties within the APE is a possible increase in noise due to altered air traffic patterns in the NY/NJ/PHL Metropolitan Area. Considering the urban setting of the properties within the APE, and the ambient noise generated by the surrounding industry and highways, it is concluded that these increases would not constitute an adverse effect upon a National Register-eligible property. There are no physical threats to the APE from this project.

Historic/Other Name: Corinthian Yacht Club

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

The Corinthian Yacht Club stands in a parklike setting amongst large trees. The clubhouse is set on the north bank of the Delaware River. The Governor Printz Park forms the eastern boundary.

The main historic building in this complex is the central mansard-roofed section. A large three-story frame addition is attached to the east end by a small connector, and a stuccoed building adjoins the west side.

The original five-bay two-story brick structure has a central entrance. A porch spans this north-facing main façade. Significant details include Flemish bond masonry and a bracketed cornice. 6/6 sash windows are found on the first floor, and 12/12 windows on the second floor. Three dormers are topped by arched roofs. A chimney appears on the east side.

The two-story stuccoed western section is covered by a flat roof supported by a bracketed cornice. The two-bay northern side is sheltered by a porch. A chimney is centered on this façade.

The eastern addition has a hipped roof. A one-story section covers its north side. A chimney is located on the western elevation

Louvered shutters flank most of the windows throughout the building.

A small stone outbuilding (045-TI-018) stands northwest of the clubhouse. The entrance is located in the east gable end. A lower level is set halfway underground. There is an opening to this level on the south side. In the west elevation a small ventilation slit carefully framed by stones pierces the gable end. There is an additional opening into the structure below this vent. The interior of the building was not inspected, so the structure's purpose has not been determined. It has been described as a springhouse, although it may have been a smokehouse.

Historic Name/Other Name: Corinthian Yacht Club

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE:

The Corinthian Yacht Club stands on land that was settled by Swedes under Governor Johan Printz in 1643. The Printzhof, capital of New Sweden, adjoins the property to the east. This settlement is the oldest in the current State of Pennsylvania.

The clubhouse originated as a dwelling. It was later used as a hotel, which was purchased in 1892 by the Corinthian Yacht Club. Architects George Hewitt and Charles Keen remodeled the building to serve as a clubhouse.

The History of Tinicum Township (page 70) describes activities at the club: "Two yacht basin areas were built to accommodate member boats. The club was the scene of many races and regattas. Some activities were so popular that steamboats full of spectators and a band would anchor to watch."

The stone outbuilding (045-TI-018) has been described as a springhouse. Further inspection could determine if this structure is perhaps the stone smokehouse said to accompany an old log house, possibly of Swedish origin, that remained on the property in the late 19th century. (History of Tinicum Township, p. 70)

The Corinthian Yacht Club was considered eligible for the National Register when it was evaluated in 1994. The clubhouse remains in use and stands in good condition. With its various sections and additions, as well as several periods of historical significance, the Corinthian Yacht Club would be eligible for nomination to the National Register. The springhouse/smokehouse should be included in this nomination. The site has significant archaeological potential for evidence of the 17th century Swedish settlement.

Survey Code: 045-TI-005 Tax Parcel/Other No.: Multiple
County: Delaware Municipality: Tinicum Township
Address: Jansen, Saude, and Seneca Aves.
Historic/Other Name: Westinghouse Village

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

Westinghouse Village consists of a series of two-story buildings, each containing three or four housing units. Originally a total of 192 units were constructed on Jansen and Saude Avenues and Seneca Street. Most of the buildings are brick.

The predominate building style is Dutch Colonial. The structures built in this form, such as 550-556 Saude Ave., have gambrel roofs and both shed and gambrel dormers. A porch shelters the entrance to each two-story home. Each building's end wall originally featured a pair of chimneys bridged at the top, above a semicircular attic window. It appears that the buildings originally featured 6/1 sash, most of which has since been replaced by modern 1/1 sash windows. Most of the shutters which flanked the windows have been removed.

Many of the buildings have a main façade laid in Flemish bond. The foundations are concrete. A set of precast concrete steps leads to each unit. These units are four bays wide by two bays deep. Some structures have a projecting bay on the end wall.

Set back farther from the street, and interspersed with the Dutch Colonial buildings, are more simply designed gable-roofed quadruple units, such as 542-548 Saude Ave.

Historic Name/Other Name: Westinghouse Village

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE:

The Westinghouse Electrical Corporation built a production facility in Tinicum in 1917 (045-TI-007). The company manufactured propulsion equipment for the Liberty Ships built at the nearby Hog Island shipyard during World War I. Westinghouse hired architect Clarence W. Brazer to design housing for its workers. The resulting rowhouses known as Westinghouse Village were built from 1918-1920. 172 of the 192 units remain. The well-designed rowhouses provided a model for industrial workers' housing.

The structures ranging along Saude and Jenson Aves. and Seneca St. are now individually owned. Although superficial changes and additions have been made, the overall form of the community remains intact. Westinghouse Village still appears eligible for nomination to the National Register as a district today, as was determined in 1994. Specific boundaries have not been identified because part of the community is located outside this project's APE, and it is therefore beyond the scope of this review.

County: Delaware Municipality: Tinicum Township
Address: Terminus of W. 2nd St. Essington PA 19029
Historic/Other Name: Linde Air Products Corp.

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

This site is located on the north bank of the Delaware River at the end of West 2nd St. in Essington, PA.

This brick industrial complex includes a rectangular building with a smokestack and a series of three joined Quonset hut structures. The north-south oriented rectangular building adjoining the smokestack has corbelled brick pilasters alternating with inset brick panels. A roll-up equipment door, a worker entrance, and a metal industrial casement window are found on the east side. Two conical metal ventilators are set atop the roof. The tapered brick smokestack stands in good condition.

The brick Quonset huts are also oriented north-south. They stand east of the smokestack building's north end. The Quonset huts are covered by arched metal roofs. Another square brick structure, possibly a later addition, adjoins the south end.

These manufacturing structures are surrounded by metal buildings described in the 1994 survey.

Permission was not granted for further evaluation of the site.

Historic Name/Other Name: Linde Air Products Corporation

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE:

The Linde Air Products Corp., a branch of Union Carbide, built its first plant in Tinicum Township in the 1930's to produce bottled gas. This facility was located on Powhatan Ave. When a larger property was needed, circa 1940, the company purchased the Philadelphia Yacht Club, razed the clubhouse, and constructed a new manufacturing plant. This forms the basis for the current manufacturing facility, now owned by Piasecki Aircraft Corp. It has not been determined whether any buildings in addition to the original brick structures are of historical significance.

This complex appears to be in nearly original condition. The buildings and smokestack represent a mid-20th century manufacturing facility that may have been of significance during World War II. Further research, beyond the scope of the current study, would reveal the facility's industrial history.

Although this property was not considered by the 1994 survey to be eligible for nomination to the National Register, this site's potential should be evaluated in more detail. The Linde Corp. site is located within a quarter mile of the Printzhof, the original 1643 Swedish settlement. Archaeological remains of the Swedish settlement may be found on the Linde property. A Native American settlement may have existed in this area before the Swedish occupation. This property was operated as the Tinicum Fishing Company in the 19th century. In 1891 The Philadelphia Yacht Club purchased the site. The club razed the old house used by the fishing company and constructed a large gambrel-roofed clubhouse, which has since been demolished.

This site may have archaeological significance from these various occupations. An archaeological analysis is not included in the scope of this project. The current owner did not grant permission for a detailed evaluation of the property.

Due to this site's three centuries of historical significance, including the mid-20th century industrial complex, the property is considered eligible for nomination to the National Register.

Survey Code: 045-TI-014 Tax Parcel/Other No.: 45-00-00127-00
County: Delaware Municipality: Tinicum Township
Address: 46 Carre Ave. Essington PA 19029
Historic/Other Name: Art Moderne House

PHYSICAL DESCRIPTION:

The Art Moderne House is located on the southeast corner of Carre Avenue and East Third Street in Essington, PA. The neighboring homes were built in a variety of styles throughout the 20th century.

This two-story stuccoed house is constructed in a modern style. It was first built as a single-story dwelling in the 1930s or 1940s, then raised to two stories in a compatible design at an unknown date, perhaps the 1950s or 1960s. The building comprises a main block joined by a western curved-end section, all covered by a flat roof. The main entry is located diagonally in the northwest juncture of the two parts. A two-story porch runs along the south side of the dwelling.

The east and north sides of the main house are each pierced by two joined pairs of 2/2 sash windows at each floor level, except for the first story northernmost bay. This section features several multipane casement windows which wrap around to the west side. A metal pole reinforces the corner.

The rounded section is distinguished on the first story by two narrow bands of windows which flank an end chimney. Three small jalousied windows appear on the second floor on either side of the chimney.

The south side of the house has several entrances, some of which may be additions to the original structure. The porch and exterior stairway on this side incorporate a faux-stone veneer which is compatible with but different from the original treatment found on the house. A cellar entrance opens into the south part of the east side.

The Art Moderne House is covered in a concrete or stucco finish, which is painted a cream color on most of the first story. A concrete drip-course ledge protrudes at the top of the first story. A distinctive stonelike masonry veneer covers the walls below the window level. This treatment also covers the chimney, the entrance surround and paving, and the full height of the curved northeast corner. The multicolored material used appears to be either stone veneer or thin blocks of rustic-edged concrete resembling stone. The various-sized blocks in earthy hues of brown, cream, and gray have been carefully set in an artistic arrangement.

Historic Name/Other Name: Art Moderne House

HISTORICAL NARRATIVE:

According to Mrs. Dipaolo, a current owner, this house was built in the 1930's by a ship captain. He designed the curved corners and prow-like western section to resemble a ship. He built the house as a one-story dwelling, which was later raised to two stories. Many interested people stop by to photograph the distinctive building. Children ask if it is a castle. It was previously reported that the home was built by a returning WWII veteran. Further research would reveal the identity of the original builder.

The Art Moderne House reflects mid-20th century modern influences. The flat-roofed block form with a smooth stucco finish punctuated by simple windows resembles structures of the International style. Streamlined shapes, smooth finishes, ribbon windows, and curved walls exemplify this style. However, this house also displays Wrightian or Prairie-style characteristics such as the use of stone, albeit in an artificial form. This treatment is also similar to mid-century ranchers, although it is applied to a more modernistic building in this case.

These styles and materials are artistically incorporated into a striking building. This eclectic structure is all the more unusual for its location on a small lot in a conventional neighborhood. Research into the architect, builder, and owner should reveal an interesting history of the Art Moderne House.

During the 1994 survey the Art Moderne House was not considered eligible for nomination to the National Register. However, the building may well be eligible as an unusual folk-art interpretation of a modern style. The history of this distinctive structure should be researched in detail.

Area of Potential Effect (APE): Newark Liberty Int'l Airport Additional APE South: Elizabeth, NJ; June, 2007

The Additional APE South is located in Elizabeth, Union Co., New Jersey, just south of the Newark Liberty International Airport. The general study area is bound by Interstate 95, the New Jersey Turnpike, to the southeast, Elizabeth Ave. to the southwest, the airport to the northeast, and Rt. 1/9 to the northwest. The topography is fairly level, sloping gently to the waterfront.

The APE, determined by potential increase in noise from air traffic from Newark Liberty International Airport, is found northwest of I-95. Archaeological Assessment, National Register Criterion D, was not part of this evaluation of above-ground resources.

Within the Additional APE, four buildings have been determined to be eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places:

1) The Unification Chapel at 953 E. Grand St. was determined eligible by SHPO opinion on March 19, 1996 (HPO#190). (See Plate 1) As described by Arch2, Inc, on page 199 of their 1995 report, 'Architectural Historic Sites Survey for the Modified Elizabeth Segment of the Newark-Elizabeth Rail Link' (HPO Mult-Z 36a),

"Originally known as the Gospel Mission, this circa 1910 church, located at 953 East Grand Street is eligible for the National Register under Criterion C as a remarkably intact and excellent example of a modest ecclesiastical structure dating from the early twentieth century. The chapel is a late vernacular interpretation of the Wren/Gibbs type with a pointed central tower and round-arched windows. The church, constructed of frame and covered with shingles, is in remarkably intact condition and an excellent example of a modest ecclesiastical structure of this period."

Although this building currently does not appear to be used for its original purpose, it remains structurally intact. Therefore the chapel appears to retain its National Register eligibility.

2) #34 Fourth Street. This Flemish bond brick building, ca. 1860 is located in Study area 9 (IX) – 5, a 1985 evaluation resulted in its National Register eligibility.

3) 509–517 Livingston Street. This multi-family dwelling, ca. 1870s, was evaluated in 1985 and determined eligible for listing on the National Register. Located in Study area 9 (IX) – 9.

4) The Singer Factory District on Trumbull St. The NJ SHPO listed this district on the New Jersey Register of Historic Places on December 15, 1986, and determined the property to be eligible for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places on November 7, 1988. The Singer Manufacturing Co. was the largest factory built in Elizabeth Port. The original building opened in 1873, employing 2,500 workers. At that time this manufacturer of sewing machines was considered the largest single-product factory in the world. Until the 1930s this remained the largest factory in the region. Part of the five-story 100-bay-long brick building is currently occupied by several businesses. The building stands in a state of fairly good repair, retaining its National Register eligibility.

The neighborhoods in the Additional APE are similar in character to those described in the Report of Findings of the APE South, Elizabeth (2006). (Please refer to this report.) The buildings in the Additional APE were predominantly built in the late 19th and early 20th centuries.

The majority of the Additional APE is residential, with churches, commercial structures, and modern intrusions interspersed. (Plates 4 and 9) The domestic structures are primarily narrow, two-story wood-frame buildings with a gable, or occasionally gambrel, end facing the street. (Plate 5) A few of the homes are of brick construction. (Plates 8 and 10) They measure two or three bays in width and run nearly the depth of the lot. The entrance is typically sheltered by a porch. Several of these homes were originally built as duplexes or have been altered to serve as such, including 945/7 E. Grand St., 137/9 Jacques St., 860 E. Jersey St. and 828/30 E. Jersey St. (Plates 5, 8, and 10)

Recently built homes have altered the streetscape by their deeper setbacks and atypical forms and materials. (Plates 14 and 15) These intrusions have detracted from the setting and feeling of the APE, reducing the historical character of the neighborhoods.

Most of the homes within the Additional APE have lost architectural integrity due to incompatible alterations and additions, and the application of modern materials such as aluminum or vinyl siding or artificial stone. (Plates 2, 7, and 11) The original wooden sash windows have been replaced with single pane aluminum sash windows. These alterations have eliminated the original materials and workmanship. Therefore there is no section of the Additional APE, nor any single building therein, that is eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places under Criterion C, architectural integrity. No building within the APE has been found to be associated with historically significant persons or events. Therefore no structures are eligible for nomination to the National Register under Criterion A or B.

Several homes retain historical materials and character, such as 826 and 828/30 E. Jersey St. (Plate 10), 858 and 860 E. Jersey St. (Plate 8), and 849 Smith St. (Plate 13). However, none of these buildings is such an exceptional example of its type as to be individually eligible for nomination to the National Register under Criterion C.

One anomalous structure located at 831 Martin St. appears to predate its neighboring homes. (Plates 11 and 12) The long side of this two-story frame building, rather than the gable end, faces the street. The three-bay building has a brick chimney at the west end and an entrance in the easternmost bay. The home stands on a brick foundation. This building may date from the late 18th or early 19th century. However, it has lost architectural integrity due to recladding in vinyl siding, the replacement of original windows, and the rebuilding of the front porch with modern materials. It is therefore ineligible for nomination to the National Register under Criterion C.

Commercial structures, primarily stores and small businesses, are found within the Additional APE. Some of these date from the late 19th or early 20th century, including Jacques Corner at the intersection of Jacques St. and Lafayette St. (Plate 3) None of these buildings is an exceptional example of its type leading to National Register eligibility under Criterion C. Modern commercial buildings and apartment houses are found at the corner of E. Jersey St. and Division St. An auto repair shop and other modern buildings dominate the triangular block between New Point Rd., E. Jersey St., and E. 6th St. A tiny landscaped park is located at the eastern point of the triangle. (Plate 15)

Ecclesiastical buildings are located throughout the Additional APE. Examples include New Hope Memorial Baptist Church at 889 E. Jersey St. (Plate 6), New Bethel Baptist Church at 856 E. Jersey St., Ministerio Christiano at 864 E. Jersey St., and Iglesia Bautista Hispanoamerica at 859 Martin St. The large stuccoed building of Jesuchristo es el Senor De Elizabeth Bienvenido, 201–223 Spring St., adjoins the Unification Chapel and dominates the city block between Spring St, E. Grand St., and Praise the Lord Plaza. Other than the aforementioned Unification Chapel, none of these buildings retains such architectural integrity or significance as to be eligible for nomination to the National Register under Criteria A, B, or C.

As found in the Report of Findings, APE South, Elizabeth, 2006, the only adverse effect upon the National Register–eligible properties within the Additional APE is a possible increase in noise due to altered air traffic patterns from the Newark Liberty International Airport. This would be a slight increase above the current considerable noise generated by the surrounding industry and highways. There are no physical threats to the Additional APE from this project.

New York/New Jersey/Philadelphia Metropolitan Airspace Redesign
Project: Philadelphia International Airport
Additional APE (APE-A): July 2, 2007

Summary Report: Windshield Survey

The Additional APE (APE-A) encompasses an area equaling approximately 20 city blocks, located within the open spaces of the original APE reviewed in 2006. (See Additional APE map.) Sections of the APE-A found along highway Rt. 291, Governor Printz Blvd., comprise predominantly roadway bordered by a few residences and small businesses that are not eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. The westernmost APE-A is occupied by modern small commercial buildings, also not NR-eligible.

The northernmost APE-A includes the west side of Saude Ave. The homes in this block are part of the Westinghouse Village Historic District reviewed in 2006.

A multi-part stuccoed building known as “Lou Turk’s Restaurant” is located in the triangular area defined by Powhattan Ave., Old Tinicum Island Rd., and Jansen Ave. If this building is the railroad freight station which is seen on historical maps, the structure has been so modernized and altered as to be NR-ineligible.

The former Westinghouse Industrial Complex occupies the entire southeastern section of the APE-A. Part of this industrial area was included in the 2006 APE. The division between the two APEs is difficult to recognize at the site. The area now functions as the Airport Business Complex. The former Westinghouse buildings are occupied by various companies. This industrial area has not been thoroughly studied in detail. Such research is beyond the scope of this windshield survey.

Three structures in this area have been identified as needing further research to determine their NR eligibility. The TWA Maintenance Hangar located on Tinicum Island Road has been determined by PHMC to be NR-eligible. The road names in the Complex have been changed, and the location of this structure was not apparent. Also, many buildings have been covered with corrugated metal sheathing, disguising their original appearance. It is not known if the TWA building maintains its structural integrity, and therefore its NR eligibility.

One brick building in the Westinghouse Complex was reviewed during a Historic Sites Survey by PHMC in 1994 (045-TI-007). No 'Determination of Eligibility' form for the National Register was prepared at that time.

The location of this building was not specified. At least three historic brick buildings are extant on this property. Therefore the structural condition and significance of this building is undetermined.

During the recent APE-A Windshield Survey several structures serving the historical Westinghouse Canal were located. The water intake pipe and housing extend into the Delaware River. An apparatus found at the north end of the canal may have pumped the water into the industrial complex. These structures may be eligible for the National Register and may require evaluation and determinations of eligibility.

New York/New Jersey/Philadelphia Metropolitan Airspace
Redesign Project: Newark Liberty Int'l Airport
Expanded APE South (APE-E): Elizabeth, NJ: July 17, 2007

Summary Report: Windshield Survey

The overall APE relevant to Newark Liberty Int'l Airport was reviewed in 2006. The APE South study area is located in the city of Elizabeth, Union County, south of the airport. Several additional areas were recently determined to be located within this APE. The Expanded APE (APE-E) was determined through analysis of areas facing potential noise increase due to the airspace redesign. An investigation of Section 106 resources was required as part of the EIS.

The APE-E is shaded in orange on the accompanying map. This comprises a more extensive area, geographically, than the 2006 study. The new sections are all located adjacent to areas researched in 2006. Therefore, the general history and description of the Elizabeth, NJ, APE (South) written in 2006 also describes these additional blocks. Please refer to this previous study for the Historical Context, historical maps and the bibliography. This documentation is on file at the New Jersey Historic Preservation Office in Trenton.

Four city blocks in Elizabeth, NJ, were also reviewed as part of an additional APE (APE-A) in June, 2007. Please refer to this report dated June 21, 2007 for supplementary information.

The July, 2007 Scope of Work required a windshield survey of the APE-E, as well as a study of historical and Historic Sites Survey materials available at the New Jersey Historic Preservation Office in Trenton.

The APE-E was reviewed to determine whether any structures in the area are either listed on or eligible for nomination to the National Register of Historic Places. Archaeological assessment, National Register Criterion D, was not a part of this evaluation of above-ground resources.

The APE-E was visually inspected by a windshield survey, driving and walking all streets in the APE. Photographs of typical streetscapes within the APE, as well as specific significant buildings, accompany this report.

Sections of the APE-E have been evaluated in approximately 20 previous studies, both architectural and archaeological, prompted by development projects such as construction of cell phone towers, roadways, railway facilities, and parks. Although there is some overlap of these APEs, there are also some gaps between the boundaries. Therefore the entire APE was visually inspected. I concur with previous reviewers that buildings such as the Hitchings building on Spring St. (Uni F583a, 2002) and the commercial section of First St. between Elizabeth Ave. and South Park St. (Uni AA488, 2003) are NR-ineligible due to extensive alterations.

The National Register of Historic Places (NR) eligibility of several significant buildings was evaluated. These buildings are keyed by number to the accompanying map. The Singer Factory District (1) was determined NR-eligible on Nov 7, 1988. (See previous reports.) Three buildings of this complex were photographed: the main building (included in the June 21, 2007 report) as well as a smaller brick building in the center of the District and a concrete building located near the waterfront. All structures appear to be in fair condition and maintain high architectural integrity.

Within the large northeast portion of the APE-E where the Singer District is located, most of the structures are industrial or commercial buildings less than 50 years old. The few earlier structures do not possess architectural or historical significance. A single exception is a brick building located on the north side of Slater Dr., about a quarter mile south of the Singer District and several hundred yards north of the Arthur Kill waterfront (2). The gable front of this structure displays the 5:1 brick bonding, stepped corbelling at the roofline, and arched windowheads of similar late-19th century industrial buildings. The building appears to be little altered, retaining high architectural integrity. This structure is not known to have been evaluated in previous reports. It is located in the region of significant 19th century industrial activity served by the Elizabeth Branch of the Central New Jersey Railroad. Further research is recommended to determine its NR eligibility based on architectural integrity and historical industrial or railroad significance.

Two historically significant transportation modes within the APE-E were surveyed in 'Historic Architectural Sites Survey for the North Avenue Corridor Improvement Project' (Uni-F699) by Arch2, Inc., in November, 2004. The New Jersey Turnpike, which opened in 1952, was not determined to be NR eligible, because "A full survey of the entire 148 miles would be necessary to provide a definitive opinion of National Register eligibility."

The Newark and Elizabeth Branch, Central Railroad of New Jersey was also documented. On August 30, 2000, this railroad was determined by the NJ SHPO to be NR eligible. It appears that a complex of small industrial buildings located along the railroad line on Magnolia St. at Division St. may not have been included as a resource (3). This structure was not considered NR eligible when surveyed as part of the 1985 Elizabeth Historic Sites Survey as #14, Area X. However, the building appears to retain high architectural integrity, and in light of the subsequent SHPO opinion, it may be NR eligible. The 1985 survey described this site:

"Two large buildings at this corner were built as separate businesses in the late 19th century. The eastern structure, originally known as the Bronx Powder Company, is one story high and twelve bays long. Each bay contains continuous gabled peaks. The structure, built of brick, has corbelled brick bands. The westernmost building, originally the Jenkins Rubber Company, is also brick. The structure rises two stories and is sixteen bays long with gabled roof. Its segmental arched first floor openings and flat arched floor windows have been enclosed."

Further research is recommended to determine what part of this site remains and to review its architectural integrity and historical significance.

The 1985 survey located two NR eligible sites within the APE. The rowhouses designated as Area IX-9 509-517 Livingston St., have since been demolished and replaced with modern rowhouses.

The site designated as Area IX-5 34 E. 4th St., appears to remain in similar condition to its 1985 photo (4). At that time the circa 1860 building was described as having “Flemish bond brick work...segmental arched windows, a wooden bracketed cornice, and a corbelled brick chimney.” The report further stated, “This house has local architectural significance as a rare example of a brick duplex with Italianate detailing.” Therefore this building is currently considered NR-eligible. It was also noted in the current review that historically significant sidewalk paving of slate slabs and Belgian block is extant at the southeast corner of the property.

The building adjacent to 34 E. 4th St, around the corner at 406 Marshall St., is of similar historical architectural integrity. Because the 1985 survey was selective, rather than comprehensive, this building was overlooked. This two-story brick structure may have been a home or a small business. The circa 1900 building is constructed in a 5:1 brick bond with concrete or stone quoins, windowheads, and other detailing. These distinctive features contribute to the building’s architectural significance. The only notable alteration is an overlay of light-colored brick veneer under the porch on the south side. Therefore this building is considered NR-eligible, and should be further researched. The neighboring NR-eligible property at 34 E. 4th St. enhances the historical setting.

The John Marshall School building (5), located on the northeast side of Magnolia Ave. between E. 5th St. and E. 6th St., is the final building in this study which appears to be NR-eligible. The school was built in 1929. The neoclassical brick façade with stone trim is architecturally distinctive and retains high integrity. The history of this structure should be evaluated further.

Other areas of the APE-E are occupied by late-19th and early 20th century neighborhoods whose homes have been generally altered by modern additions and materials. No individual structure or district has been identified as NR-eligible.

The section of APE-E along the Arthur Kill waterfront has been developed as a public park. Modern condominiums have been built along Front St. facing the park.

The only adverse effect upon the National Register-eligible properties within the APE-E is a possible increase in noise due to altered air traffic patterns from the Newark Liberty Int’l Airport. This would be a slight increase above the current considerable noise generated by the surrounding industry and highways. There are no physical threats to the APE from this project.
