

Aircraft Systems-Communications

The primary pilot controls the aircraft through a 2.4 GHz RC link. This will be the only control link present during initial flight testing.

When the avionics package is installed, the aircraft can also be controlled by the research pilot through a 900 MHz link. The 900 MHz system is also used for telemetry downlink.